

ABSTRACT

The present invention comprises: a freight container having two access doors hingedly mounted at one end of the container via respective sets of hinges and mounting brackets which connect one edge of each door to a respective container door post; characterised in that at least one hinge and corresponding mounting bracket have cooperating receiving locations arranged to receive a customs seal when the corresponding door is in a closed position.